Questions

1. What do your competent national authorities enter in the fields of (a) country of birth, and (b) the three-letter code pertaining to the country of the place of birth in the residence permits issued to holders of Taiwanese passports?

Responses

	Country	Wider Dissemination	Response
	Austria	Yes	1. It needs to be mentioned that Austria has not recognized Taiwan as a state. Therefore, “Taiwan” cannot be entered as nationality offhandedly. However, in order to take into account the needs of applicants, the description “[Taiwan]” (name in square brackets without affix or footnote) can be used in documents and forms. a) Regarding persons with Taiwanese travel documents, the competent Austrian authorities enter [Taiwan] as nationality in the “residence permit”. As ISOCODE “TWN” is entered. b) The Austrian residence permit has only one field "birthplace" in which the birthplace of the alien is written out, but no field with the title "country of birthplace" and thus no special codes are to be filled in. --- Source: Ministry of the Interior
	Belgium	Yes	1. Regarding the fields country/place of birth, it is worth noting that in Belgium, only the place of birth - and not the country of birth - is entered. The place of birth is not followed by the country of birth in brackets. However if the place of birth is not known, then the country of birth (as named at the moment of birth - and not as currently named) is entered. Source: Immigration Office - Study
